

Civil Defence homeless help praised

CIVIL Defence volunteers who have been caring for the homeless in Dublin since early December received the personal thanks of Government last week. Minister of State Paul Kehoe met volunteers and praised their dedication in helping the homeless.

Since December 12 last, Dublin Civil Defence, with support from Civil Defence units in other areas around the country, have provided emergency accommodation for up to 20 homeless men at their centre at Wolfe Tone Quay. The centre opens each night at nine and stays open until nine the following morning.
